Coast Salish Nations unite to protect Salish Sea

Press Release: Coast Salish Sea Tribes and Nations

The Lummi, Swinomish, Suquamish and Tulalip tribes of Washington, and the Tsleil-Waututh, Squamish and Musqueam Nations in British Columbia stand together to protect the Salish Sea. Our Coast Salish governments will not sit idle while Kinder Morgan's proposed TransMountain Pipeline, and other energy-expansion and export projects, pose a threat to the environmental integrity of our sacred homelands and waters, our treaty and aboriginal rights, and our cultures and life ways.

The Salish Sea is one of the world's largest and unique marine water inland seas. It is home to the aboriginal and treaty tribes of the Northwest whose

Protecting traditional knowledge Tulalip participates in U.N. conference on protection of indigenous identities

By Andrew Gobin

The Tulalip Tribes continues to participate in United Nations discussions about protecting the traditional knowledge of indigenous peoples, including oral histories and language, cultural expression, and genetic resources. Ray Fryberg Sr. and Preston Hardison of the Tulalip tribes Natural Resources Department traveled to Geneva, Switzerland, for the 13th conference on traditional knowledge and biodiversity

"We don't want to set the rules, we want tribes to be recognized as having the right to determine how, where, and why their knowledge is shared. Each culture has its own rules dictating those things, it should be up to those people to determine."

- Preston Hardison

February 3rd-7th. The meetings potentially will conclude with an international treaty protecting indigenous peoples' rights to their knowledge and any gains therein. Although the international treaty would protect traditional knowledge on a global scale, the real fight is here at home in the United States, who has remained one of the strongest opponents to intellectual property rights on a global scale.

Tulalip Tribes Vision

We gathered at Tulalip are one people.
We govern ourselves.
We will arrive at a time when each and every person has become most capable.
Together we create a healthy and culturally vibrant community

Tulalip Tribes Mission

We make available training, teaching and advice, both spiritual and practical.

Tulalip Tribes Values

1. We respect the community of our elders past and present, and pay attention to their good words.
2. We uphold and follow the teachings that come from our ancestors.
3. It is valued work to uphold and serve our people.
4. We work hard and always do our best.
5. We show respect to every individual.
6. We strengthen our people so that they may walk a good walk.
7. We do not gossip, we speak the truth.

Salish Sea from front page

shared ecosystem includes Washington State's Puget Sound, the Strait of Juan de Fuca, the San Juan Islands, British Columbia's Gulf Islands and the Strait of Georgia.

In December 2013, Kinder Morgan, the third largest energy producer in North America, filed an application with the National Energy Board ("NEB") of Canada to build a new pipeline to transport additional crude oil from the tar sands of Alberta to Vancouver, B.C., where it will be put on tanker vessels and shipped to Asia. The NEB is the Canadian federal agency that regulates energy.

If approved, the proposal would result in expanded transport of crude oil from approximately 300,000 to 890,000 barrels per day. This is a 200 percent increase in oil tanker traffic through the waters of the Salish Sea. Vessel groundings, accidents, leaks, and oil spills are not only possible, they are inevitable.

New jobs and economic growth are being touted as incentives to justify the expansion of the Northwest as the "gateway to the Pacific." But good fishing and tourism jobs will be lost that depend on a healthy and intact environment. If these projects are approved, the potentially catastrophic effects to our environment and cultural resources will put our Northwest way of life in jeopardy.

In addition to the Kinder Morgan proposal, other port projects and expansions seek to increase the cumulative export of raw fossil fuels from the Salish Sea region to the Asian Pacific and beyond.

As the first peoples of the Salish Sea, it is our responsibility to ensure that our ancestral fishing and harvesting grounds are not reduced to a glorified highway for industry. Each of these proposals represents a potential new threat to our treaty rights in the traditional fishing areas of the Coast Salish tribes and nations. These are rights that the United States promised to protect when they signed treaties with the tribes, recognizing our inherent right to fish "at usual and accustomed grounds and stations." (1855 Treaty of Point Elliott, Article 5.)

Our relatives to the east, on the sacred Columbia River, are fighting similar battles against dirty fuel projects that threaten to pollute their lands and waters. The Nez Perce stand firm on ensuring that this unique area of the country and tribal homelands are not transformed into a "mega-load" industrial corridor.

Other Columbia River tribes, including the Yakama, Umatilla, and Warm Springs all stand with the Nez Perce to fight for their traditional fishing grounds on the Columbia River and its tributaries. Multiple energy export proposals, up and down the river, threaten to choke the very life from a once bountiful traditional fishing ground. Coast Salish tribes link arms with their cousins along the Columbia.

*****REVISED February 12, 2014*****

On February 11, 2014, the undersigned tribes and nations collectively filed for official intervenor status in the National Energy Board (NEB) of Canada's hearing process that decides whether or not to approve Kinder Morgan's application. This will allow us to present our story, offer evidence and studies documenting impacts on our way of life, and ask important questions during the hearings to ensure the panel receives all the information needed to make an informed decision.

The Coast Salish will fight for our treaty rights, our culture, and our way of life. If protecting our homelands and cultures means standing up against Kinder Morgan's TransMountain Pipeline, and other proposals that endanger our region, we will most certainly do so. It is our sacred duty to leave future generations a healthy world.

If our children and our children's children are to know the taste of wild salmon, and the ancient calling of the Salish Sea, we must stand up. The Coast Salish peoples have a saying, "from white caps to white caps," which means from the snowy peaks of our mountains to the foam-capped waves of our seas, this is our world.

We issue a call to all Native Americans, First Nations relatives, and to all people who love the Salish Sea to please stand

U.N. from front page

"As Indian tribes across the U.S. enter the national and global markets, the need to protect their traditional knowledge has become more prevalent," said Hardison. "Especially with casinos, the tribes have brands, logos, and now traditional art that is being put out there."

This touches on one aspect of the intellectual property debate on traditional knowledge; cultural expression. The use of art to brand Tulalip as a business, as a destination, now is vulnerable to being taken and used in ways other than intended, without the permission of the artist or Tulalip.

"We don't want to set the rules," Hardison added, "we want tribes to be recognized as having the right to determine how, where, and why their knowledge is shared. Each culture has its own rules dictating those things, it should be up to those people to determine."

Tulalip has been involved in this discussion at the U.N. since 2001, represented at 12 of the 14 meetings on indigenous knowledge and biodiversity. What they are working towards is a treaty that protects indigenous people on a global scale, recognizing their inherent rights to resources and traditional knowledge, so that those things may not be exploited. Currently, the exploitation of traditional knowledge and resources jeopardizes the survival of indigenous cultures around the world, essentially stripping them of access to their identities.

Ray Fryberg was selected to co-chair the committee of indigenous leaders that spoke to the issue of intellectual property rights. According to reports from the U.N., he was selected for his vast traditional knowledge and passion for preserving all that is encompassed in traditional knowledge, including genetic and natural resources and cultural expression.

Although Tulalip is sovereign, they are not recognized by the U.N. as a sovereign state. They have no seat, no vote, but they do have a consulting voice. Tulalip has to bid for support from other sovereigns, facing opposition most from the U.S.

"For tribes, pressure for protection has to come from within the U.S., not outside. And Tulalip is just about the only one that is in position to do it," explained Hardison.

Hardison, along with Terry Williams who also works for Tulalip Natural Resources, have continued to be instrumental in the progress for protecting traditional knowledge. They have been involved since 2001, working together at 11 conference meetings, and were key players in the passing of the Nagoya Protocol, which protects the exploitation of genetic resources. The U.S. is not a nation signatory to the Nagoya Protocol.

Current laws in the U.S. have no teeth. The Native American Arts and Crafts Act prevents non Indians from marketing things as Native American art, but it doesn't prevent the use of traditional methods and materials for personal gains. The Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act allows for remains and artifacts to come back to tribes if the tribes can prove relationship to or historic connection, putting the burden of proof on the tribes. Tulalip continues to fight on the international stage for these rights, strengthening their position to protect these rights at home in the United States.

organic foods. The greenhouse gardening project is a partnership between the Tulalip Tribes and WSU Snohomish County Master Gardener's Association to promote healthy living through healthy eating habits.

The greenhouse is an expansion of the farm families program at the Tulalip Karen I. Fryberg Health Clinic, where patients can take classes about gardening and the nutritional benefits of different foods. The program mostly features cold-weather crops and tomatoes. Part of the expansion includes the addition of gardening classes offered through the WSU Snohomish County Master Gardener's Association that are open to the public, though the gardens will mostly benefit the Tulalip community. While the public classes may not harvest the plants, participation in the gardening program is encouraged to all tribal families who may harvest the gardens.

Herbs and vegetables will be planted in April as classes for both programs start again.

With more participation, tribal families can learn to combat some of the diseases they are prone to, such as diabetes. Fryberg, who opened the event offering a prayer as a blessing for the greenhouse, is a living testament to how food choices have saved his life.

"Food is our first medicine. Traditional foods are very important to us, not only for their cultural significance, but for what they do to nourish our bodies," explained Fryberg.

News

Through changing diet Fryberg has reversed the effect of his diabetes and has been free from his medication for two years. He chose the Paleolithic dietary plan, which eliminated all processed foods from his diet, and encouraged organic food choices. He explained about the things he doesn't eat, including things that are not clearly marked that are in non-organic foods, even unprocessed foods.

"I buy organic foods only. Meat from the store is so full of antibiotics and chemicals from their food, and those toxins are problematic to your health," he said.

"When I finished Chemo in '91, my doctor told me, 'If you know what I know about food, you would never put anything but organics in your mouth,'" added Karen Schoaf-Mitchell, a docent at Hibulb Cultural Center. "I asked, 'Isn't that expensive?' and she told me not if you grow your own. She also asked what that cost is compared to the cost of ending up fighting cancer again. I'm still cancer free."

The blessing offered by Fryberg was for the project, and for the plants; that they would go towards nourishing our community and bringing people together for healthy living.

Lady Hawks advance to district championship game with win over Shoreline Christian, 65-38

Article and photos by Brandi N. Montreuil

Tulalip Heritage Lady Hawks win over Shoreline Christian, 65-38, in Tuesday, February 11, 2014 District 1B game played at Mt. Vernon Christian High School proved the Lady Hawks are determined to be champions.

Lady Hawks kept a solid lead over Shoreline throughout most of the game scoring 33 points to Shoreline's 21 by half-time. But it was in the last five minutes that Lady Hawks really showed off their court skills through a series of key moves that doubled the score ending Shoreline's hope of advancing.

Tulalip Heritage Lady Hawks led the District 1 1B Girls Basketball league this season with incredible wins while perfecting a cohesive man-to-man coverage. Throughout the season, the Lady Hawks have been the district 1B's team to beat, losing only two games out of the 18 played this season, but nothing prepared them for the upset on Thursday, February 13, when they played Mt. Vernon Christian High School Hurricanes for the 1B District Championship title.

At Mt. Vernon Christian High School

Heritage Lady Hawks 22 6 11 13 --52

Mt. Vernon Christian 14 17 16 12 --59

At the start Lady Hawks appeared out of rhythm allowing for numerous turnovers in the first half and committing an unusual amount of fouls that gave the Hurricanes an advantage to score some extra points.

"The girls got into foul trouble early and they felt they weren't ready to play," said Heritage Lady Hawks coach Cyrus Fry-berg. “When you are in foul trouble the way we were, there is nothing you can do about it, we just had to keep playing through it. We didn’t give up, we kept fighting.”

In the third quarter the Hurricanes applied pressure, taking advantage of Lady Hawks fouls to quickly take the lead.

“I thought my two point guards played great tonight,” said Lady Hawks coach Cyrus Fryberg. “We tried to work around Adiya and get on the inside, but she just wasn’t there tonight. She got into foul trouble early on and that hurts her game plan later in the game. She was stressed out and she couldn’t make any plays.”

Although Lady Hawks made a forceful attempt to take back the lead in the fourth quarter the home crowd noise affected their drive.

“The noise definitely played a factor in tonight’s game. They set it up where they had their students behind my bench and the girls could barely hear my plays. At times the girls really didn’t understand what we were doing, so I had to get louder. It helped a little, but in the later run, it was an advantage to having their cheers right behind my bench,” said Fryberg.

In addition to the noise, the loss of Adiya Jones and Shania Moses, who fouled out in the last minutes of the game, hurt the Lady Hawks chance to crush the Hurricanes slim lead over them, ending their championship title dreams in a devastating loss, 52-59.

“I told the girls, it is not over, we got another chance in the loser out game. If we lose that game on February 15, then we are out, but if we win we are back in. At the end of the day, we win some and we lose some, but we are going to bounce back.”

District One 1B Champions - Hawks advance to Tri-districts

Heritage seniors Keanu Hamilton and Brandon Jones are excited for the championship win, celebrating with sophomore Ayrik Miranda (center).

Article and photos by Andrew Gobin

After a great season the Tulalip Heritage Hawks dominate the District One 1B Championships, taking home the second trophy for Tulalip. Facing rival Blackhawks from Lummi in the final game, Tulalip played an intense game. The Hawks only lost one game this season, their first game this season against the Lummi Blackhawks.

The first game of the championship series was to be played against Providence Classical Christian February 8th, but was forfeit by Providence Classical, advancing Heritage to the winner's bracket. Game two pitted the Hawks against Grace Academy on February 11th, with the Hawks leading the game by 10 points, winning 61-48.

February 13th was game three, the final game for the championship title, and it was by far the most intense. The Hawks held a narrow lead throughout the game, and at times there was a fear of losing that lead. Driven by last year's upset at this very game, the Hawks were not about to let their lead go without a fight.

Lummi won the tip off, then ten seconds into the game Bradley Fryberg, with an amazing steal from the top of the key, ran the ball down the court for a lay-up. Two points and Tulalip was in the lead. You can catch the replay on the Tulalip News Facebook page. The teams met as equals on the court, returning shot for shot keeping them neck and neck. It was a game decided by fouls, as are every rivalry game between the Hawks and the Blackhawks. The last three games of last year, including the championship upset, were lost within 2 points. This year, the Hawks prevailed, winning the title of District One 1B champions, advancing them on to Tri-Districts and hopefully the State Championships.

Senior Shawn Sачey said, "This is a great feeling. We worked hard as a team, Lummi was a hard team to beat, but we won. We have a good chance of going to state, but we'll see. We haven't played anyone from over the mountains yet."

Brandon Jones, also a senior, said, "The game went excellent. Scoring first gave us a lot of momentum. I just want to thank God for the win."

New addition to the team, sophomore Ayrik Miranda, said, "We came out with intensity, and we kept that through the game."

Head Coach Marlin Fryberg Jr. was very pleased with the way the team played, attributing the success of the game to crucial time outs he used to refocus his players.

"Anytime we lost momentum, I called a time out and regrouped the boys. We really played the way we wanted to, the way we practiced. The last four minutes of the game, three of their starters were on the bench. But it was really the foul shots, especially those last foul shots, that sealed the win."

This is the second time the Tulalip Heritage Hawks have won the district championships, advancing to tri-districts, which began February 18th.

Hawks defeat Mt. Rainier Lutheran

By Andrew Gobin

The Tulalip Heritage Hawks crushed the Mt. Rainier Lutheran Hawks at Heritage High School in the first tri-district championship game, held February 18. Both teams opened strong, keeping up with one another. Then in the last minutes of the first quarter, Tulalip pulled away, building on a 7 point lead that ended in a win by nearly 20 points, 76-48 Tulalip.

The win was hard earned. Tempers flared in the first quarter, leading to taunting fouls on both teams. The second quarter they tightened up, playing a clean game with minimal fouls. It seemed like the tables might have turned with Rainier sinking nothing but three pointers, but the hawks pushed on, relentlessly driving the ball to the hoop. The third quarter was all about the fouls with both teams showing signs of fatigue, lacking precision in the execution of plays, scored 71-47 Tulalip.

Both teams played hard, showing their fatigue in the fourth quarter. The starters, who had played the entire game, were pulled on both teams, as the fresh players took the court. Alan Enick scored an amazing three pointer in the final minutes of the game, further sealing the win for Tulalip.

Native American Career & Technical Education Program (NACTEP)

Submitted by Jeanne Steffener, Higher ED

What is the Native American Career & Technical Education Program (NACTEP)? More likely than not, you have seen advertising in the See Yaht Sub for these classes at the Tulalip College Center. NACTEP was authorized to provide grants to Indian tribes, tribal organizations, and Bureau funded schools to support career and technical education programs. These programs are provided to help in preparation for high-skill, high-wage, or high-demand occupations in established or emerging professions. The grant provides for the program, teachers and stipends, tuition and books for students so they can effectively participate in their education.

Tulalip Tribes has partnered with Everett Community College and Edmonds Community College in implementing the Native American Career and Technical Education program (NACTEP). With EVCC the focus this year has been on the Tribal Business Technology Certificate Program. These classes may be applied to a future degree. The goal of the courses and program is to provide students with the skills and knowledge necessary to gain employment as office support and customer service front line staff. There is a current need within the Tulalip Tribes for these skills.

Edmonds Community College's focus, on the other hand, has primarily been on the Leadership-Management courses. The Leadership Certificate of Completion can be earned by completing a series of courses on Supervision Basics, Presentation Skills, Leadership, Effective Teams and Coaching & Mentoring.

The success rates for NACTEP are documented and show that Native American students are progressing through these skill and knowledge building programs nationwide and are better prepared to pursue further education or enter into high-skilled or high-wage employment.

If you are interested in becoming part of the success story and opening up your opportunities, simply pick up your phone and dial 360-716-4888 to contact the Higher Education Department for more information or email us at higher@tulaliptribes-nsn.gov.

Zero waste policy

Article by Monica Brown

Most items can be recycled today and Tulalip's Solid Waste and Recycling Departments are in the early stages of a long term goal aimed at a zero waste policy. Within the Tulalip Tribes there are 41 buildings, outside of the administration building, that recycle.

Samuel Davis, the coordinator of Tulalip's Solid Waste and Recycling Department explains that, "It is important to change the mindset of people and the role they can play when it comes to recycling. I really want us all to be stewards of our environment and to look out for the future of our land and our children."

Currently, the waste disposal budget for Tulalip is $250,000.00 per year and includes all Tulalip Tribal Government entities, along with tribal members that dump at Shelco. "That number is too high so we are trying to find ways, through recycling and other avenues, to lower the amount of waste we send to our land-fills," Davis states.

While there are multiple locations throughout the admin building to toss recyclables, Davis said they were noticing the bins were not being used as much as they should have been and that a majority of the garbage being hauled out was filled with recyclable items. So, they decided to put a recycling bin at every desk to make it that much simpler for everyone to recycle.

"One of our next steps is to start an educational program on what can be recycled and just how important it is to recycle," said Davis. Since most items can be recycled, the other issue is the item should be clean when it is tossed into the recycling. The cleaner the container, the more it is worth in the recyclables market. Most recycling facilities sort items by type (paper, plastic, glass, metal) and then by quality. When an item is of poor quality the facility must do more work to get the item in usable shape.

Providing a clean or near clean recyclable item can save money for the city and taxpayers. But, how clean is clean? The container does not need to be squeaky clean, just without food is acceptable. An example would be a finished yogurt cup; the yogurt has been all scooped out and can be tossed in the bin but if you were to lightly rinse out the container that will make it better quality.

The white paper cups provided at the admin building, and at nearly every coffee stand, are not recyclable. This information had me personally reconsidering what I use to eat my morning oatmeal. The cups have an inner plastic coating that keeps the paper from absorbing liquids but makes the cup very difficult to recycle. Although the white cups are not recyclable the Styrofoam provided at the admin is. Davis explains, "Styrene foam (Styrofoam) is ground up, compressed and densified into blocks, which are then manufactured into plastic products such as picture frames, TV & computer cases, office equipment and other plastic products. There are only a few companies in the area that do recycle Styrofoam and we are in the process of working with them to get bins for that purpose."

At the admin building, if everyone brought in their own reusable containers, coffee cups and water bottles this would reduce the amount of waste hauled out, which is not only good for the Tribe's budget but also the environment. Check the Waste Management website, www.wmnorthwest.com for more detailed information about recycling do's and don'ts.

While most items can be recycled here is a list of items that can't be recycled: soiled paper, soiled cardboard, wrapping paper, laminated paper, paper covered in foil, frozen-food boxes, blueprints, thermal fax paper, pet food bags and dryer sheets.

Teen Dating Violence Statistics

Teen Dating Violence

Dating violence, like domestic violence, is a pattern of controlling, and abusive behaviors of one person over another within a romantic relationship. It can include verbal, emotional, physical, sexual, and financial abuse. It can occur in both heterosexual and homosexual relationships. It knows no boundaries and crosses all lines of race, socio-economic status, etc. It CAN happen to ANYONE.

I have decided to remove my name from the Board of Director Candidacy

After a long discussion with my doctors and family members I have decided to remove my name from the Board of Director Candidacy. My health is something that I need to take into consideration; I want to be here long enough to watch my grandchildren grow old and I also need to focus on Shelco and especially my golf game!

I do strongly believe that the Tulalip Tribes needs to consider the value of using the opportunities available to us due to our sovereign immunity. There are many diverse businesses that we can be reviewing to ensure our future is positive for our great grandchildren. As the economy evolves it is imperative that we consider these innovative, technical, and green sustainable businesses for our community. I hope in March our community can come together and vote in candidates that will help improve the current financial crisis and help build a bridge that will create better communication to their members. We need this election not to be a popularity vote but let it be an election based on how we can create a better future for our children.
